On-Job Teaching Project May Expand

The Marshall University Experimental Teacher Education Program, initiated in Mason County last year, may expand into Cabell and Kanawha counties next fall, according to Dr. D. Banks Wilburn, dean of Teachers College. The expansion plan has been approved by the West Virginia State Board of Education.

Dean Wilburn explained that the plan depended on whether or not there were enough students interested in participating in the program. "We are reasonably sure we will be in one new county next fall," he said.

The current program is being financed by funds appropriated by the legislature and a grant from the Ford Foundation. The dean said next fall's program will receive $18,000 already appropriated by the lawmakers and expressed hopes that the foundation would renew its grant. The Ford Foundation donated $15,000 for the project this year.

The Mason County project has 28 students participating at there different sites. The schools include Beech Hill Elementary Schools, New Haven Elementary School, and Wahoma Junior High School.

The students work under the direction of a "lead" teacher who supervises their various methods of instruction. They receive a stipend of $1,000 their first semester and $1,100 during the second semester they teach. The program requires that students teach one semester during their junior year and one during their senior year.

Dean Wilburn said that the experimental program has helped in decisions concerning curriculum changes. He explained that students participating in the project now take their last course in educational psychology during their sophomore year instead of the junior year. Because of experiences learned in the project, each regular student will have a full semester of student teaching beginning next year, he added.

Speaking of the program Dean Wilburn said, "I don't think we will expand much further at the time being."

He did explain that the program will now be officially called the Marshall University Experimental Teacher Education Program.

Senate Due Plan Today For Nov. 9

A streamlined plan for Homecoming was expected to be formalized yesterday (after The Parthenon's presstime) by the Homecoming Commission, Coordinator John Sayre, director of development and alumni affairs, said.

The commission, headed by co-chairman Craig Westfall and Dean Thompson, had been scheduled to meet Monday afternoon to put the finishing touches on the plan which would eliminate house decorations and floats. Class schedules, however, would have prevented several commission members from attending and the meeting was rescheduled for 11 a.m. yesterday.

Once the commission approves the "new look" for Homecoming, which will be held Nov. 9 with a football game against MAC foe Bowling Green, the plan must go to the Student Senate for its okay.

Most likely the Senate will consider the plan at its meeting at 6:30 p.m. today in the Student Government office.

Under the new plan, according to Mr. Sayre, activities would be expanded to include Friday night. It is possible that there might be a folk singer-type concert on Nov. 8, followed by a dance the night of the Homecoming. In addition there would be a parade of some kind, although details have not been worked out yet. Such a parade would allow greater participation by campus groups.

Efforts to eliminate floats and house decorations stem from criticisms that students devote too much time, thereby missing classes, and expenses are too great, in construction of the floats and display of decorations.

HOME EC. INITIATION

Kappa Omicron Phi, home economics honorary, will initiate four new members tonight. They are: Miss Betty Jo Sullivan, Miss Adella Strouss, Mrs. Ruby Foose, faculty members, and Brenda Hubbard.

Injunction To Halt Picketing Denied By Judge Hereford

Cabell County Circuit Court Judge John W. Hereford denied a petition Saturday for a court injunction to curtail picketing by white and Negro students at Bailey's Cafeteria in downtown Huntington.

The decision was handed down after a five-hour hearing. He cautioned the 11 defendants in the case, most of them members of an interracial group known on campus as Civic Interest Progressives, to be "very careful" in their pursuit of civil rights.

"The only reason this court could grant an injunction would be in event of property damage and violence, and there has been neither in this case," Judge Hereford said.

"I personally feel you are entitled to these civil rights, but don't disgrace your citizenship in getting them. Go about it in an American way," he said, "Be respectful. We don't live in Birmingham, Ala."

Judge Hereford told Attorney Bliss Charles, counsel for Bailey's, that the cafeteria owners have the right to carry the matter to a higher court. Judge Hereford said the case was "the most difficult I have had in 23 years on the bench."

He stressed that if there had been any violence or rudeness, an injunction would have been granted.

Herbert H. Henderson, counsel for the students, declined to say whether picketing would be resumed at the cafeteria, but one student said it would. Floyd E. Walker, co-owner of Bailey's, said the picketing outside the cafeteria had been steady since April 30.

The Huntington Commission on Civil Rights released a statement Saturday saying it "stands ready to act as conciliator in the controversy at Bailey's, or in any other area of public accommodation or employment involving race, color, religion, national ancestry or origin where its services might be utilized."

The Rev. Royce K. McDonald, chairman, said the city-sponsored commission neither endorsed nor condemned the demonstration but that it did "recognize the right" of the group to demonstrate.

The Huntington Ministerial Association also went on record as recognizing the right of the student group to picket.

Letters To Editor

Dear Editor

In recent weeks there has been no comment, editorial and otherwise, concerning the decision to drop floats from the Homecoming program. As a supporter of the abolishment of this facet of the program I feel obligated to state my views.

John Sayre, director of development and alumni affairs, who works closely with the Homecoming Commission has patiently awaited a decision concerning floats for that event. Although there have been several meetings with fair representation of the student body—some select few who wish to force their wishes upon the majority have called still another meeting to decide the fate of the floats.

My reasons for opposing this necessity for trivia are simple. The first is the time involved. A suggestion has been made that the students budget time for float building. A history of the past twenty years of no budgeting of time for float building makes this theory impractical to say the least. On the other hand, there is the reason that many would expect to be first, that of money. Just on the basis of the Greek organizations alone, $2,000 is spent annually on floats and house decorations. With the rising cost of education, isn't this money we can ill afford to spend? Quite frankly there are some organizations that cannot afford the time, money or personnel.

Many times the cost does not stop at the floats or house decorations. As in the case of a sorority last year, the damage to their house far exceeded the expenditure for the house decoration.

I have had the rather unique experience of returning to Marshall University six times as an alumnus. I traveled to Huntington from as far as Oklahoma and Minnesota but never to see the floats. I really returned to see old friends whom I knew would be migrating to Marshall for Homecoming. It represented an annual visit with friends in a familiar and friendly setting.

Little was made of the scholarship fund as a substitute for floats and house decorations. What more worthy cause could be suggested? Would it not please the alumni that we know how to help ourselves?

In conclusion I offer some words of Dr. Harry Ransom, chancellor of the University of Texas, when he urged four freedoms for students and faculty. These were: freedom from empty tradition, freedom of slavery to utility, freedom from mere fad, and freedom to make mistakes. Two of these seem to apply quite well. I believe we need freedom from empty tradition in this case, and the freedom to make a mistake if such is the case.

All I ask is a little intellectual curiosity in place of the usual apathy. If the idea of dropping the floats is not good, I will be the first to agree we made the mistake, but at least something new was attempted. It could be as successful as the second dance for older alumni and the food fest.

BOB PUTHOFF
Huntington senior

Dear Editor:

I am writing this as an open letter to all Marshall Students. The need has arisen on our campus to have a Veteran's Club. Although there is little time left to have any functions for the remainder of this school year, it is best that this organization get started so as to make this matter an easier one when the next school year rolls around.

In the past there was an active membership of well over 300 men. The vet's had such activities as the annual talent show which was always enjoyed by the students and faculty alike. There is no question that this club can and will make a significant contribution to both Marshall and the city of Huntington.

Two previous organizational meetings have been held with relative success in interest of having the club re-activated. There are those who are interested but could not come because of other obligations, therefore, in order to give all those interested a chance to help in the organization of the vet's for the coming year, it has been decided to hold a meeting tomorrow at 11 a.m. in Main 204. If you have a desire to participate in this organization, please feel more than welcome to attend the meeting. If you know of any other men who are interested but could not come to the meeting, please bring their names to the meeting with you.

For further information, see Fred H. Reeder, or telephone 525-8754 any time after 5 p.m.

DEAR EDITOR:

We wish to thank all faculty, administrative staff, buildings and grounds personnel and certain people of Huntington for their fine co-operation in the production of "Brigadoon." We also express our thanks to the orchestra, cast, dancers, crews, The Parthenon, press, radio and television.

We feel that the production on each of the four nights was satisfactory. Much special praise is due to the faculty members in the two co-operating departments and, to the patrons who made "Brigadoon" a success, we say "thank you."

An Editorial

Successful Parents' Visit Merits Congratulations

A total attendance of 2,600 for four performances of "Brigadoon," and a record-breaking crowd of 3,500 at the Mother's Day Sing, are evidences of an extremely successful Parents' Weekend.

This year, a larger number of out-of-town parents attended the festivities than in previous years, according to John M. Sayre, director of development and alumni affairs.

All these facts have become realizations because of many hours of work given by members of the student body, faculty and staff.

Extensive planning by the student commissions and faculty advisers and the many hours of rehearsals for the events went to make up a happy weekend for our parents and friends.

Every person who in any way contributed to the success of Parents' Weekend deserves our gratitude and congratulations for a job well done.

327 MU Men Interviewed; 81% Classed As 'Drinkers'

By SANDY O'SHEA
Feature Editor

According to a campus survey conducted by Charles Delehanty, Huntington junior, 81 per cent of the male students interviewed at Marshall are drinkers. The survey, entitled "Drinking Habits of Male Students At Marshall University," was conducted by Delehanty as an outside research project for a sociology class.

"The purpose of the survey," says Delehanty, "is to determine from a sociological point of view, what conditions promote or deter student drinking and whether college life itself promotes or deters it."

The survey questionnaire was answered by 327 male students out of a total male enrollment of 1,712 full-time students. The students were stratified according to year in school, religious affiliation, and independent - Greek classification. "I got a sample of 20 per cent," says Delehanty, "which is really quite good since 7-10 per cent is considered acceptable in stratified sampling."

According to Delehanty, the results of the survey show that there is no actual college influence on drinking. "The age group, not whether the individual is attending college or not, seems to be the most important factor," he says. "According to the Yale School of Alcohol, parental attitude has the greatest influence and my study at Marshall seems to bear this out."

Of Greek respondents, 93 per cent are drinkers and of those who live in fraternity houses 100 per cent drink. Of the non-Greeks, 77 per cent drink and 23 per cent don't.

Of those students who were advised by their parents not to drink, 75 per cent did anyway. Where parents were split in their attitudes as to drinking 100 per cent replied that they drank. Also in the 100 per cent "yes" category were students who had one or both parents who were problem drinkers, but none of these students drink consistently. If their parents drank, 98 per cent of the students replied that they did also.

Sixty per cent of the students who drink now changed their drinking habits since high school; and of these 60 per cent, 62 per cent changed during their freshman year and 20 per cent changed at some other time before entering college. "Fraternities don't influence male drinking habits at Marshall," says Delehanty.

"The factor is that they drank before they joined the fraternity. In fact, more non-Greeks changed their drinking habits — 65 per cent as compared to 52 per cent of the Greeks." Of students who didn't drink in high school, 72 per cent began to drink occasionally and 23 per cent began to drink frequently. If the student drank in high school he probably (96 per cent) drinks frequently in college.

The students themselves defined occasional, frequent, and consistent, but there was no set definition pattern. By occasional the respondent usually meant from one to four times per month, by frequent usually three times per week or on week-ends, and by consistent, usually every day. Sixty per cent placed themselves in the occasional category, 36 per cent said they drank frequently, and 4 per cent admitted to drinking excessively. "The over-all pattern seems to be moderate to light drinking at Marshall," says Delehanty.

Fifty-eight per cent of the drinkers drink in bars. Twenty-eight per cent do most of their drinking at parties and dances while 14 per cent do most of their drinking at home. However, if both parents drink, the home becomes the second most popular drinking place.

Students, even the drinkers, generally disapproved of men or women getting drunk. When asked if they approved of abstainers 71 per cent of the drinkers replied "yes" and 19 per cent said no. Of non-drinkers 94 per cent approved and 3 per cent did not.

"I conclude from the study," said Delehanty, "that there is no actual drinking pattern at Marshall as such. A minor faction of the students do quite a bit of drinking on week-ends but they mainly drink at parties and on special occasions."

"Dr. Richardson, my sociology professor, approved the survey, and checked the sample and questionnaire. I did a trial sample run too. It is as accurate as a questionnaire sample can be, but it is based on what students say and they may have hadged a little, I don't know."

"All in all," says Delehanty, "I am quite pleased. My survey was concomitant with the Yale National Survey taken in 1953."

Track, Golf, Net Teams Set For MAC Festival

Baseballers Split 2 Games

Three of the Big Green's spring sports teams will compete in the three-day Mid-American Conference Festival opening tomorrow on the campus of Western Michigan University at Kalamazoo. The track team will enter competition tomorrow and the golf and tennis teams will practice tomorrow and begin play Friday.

Track Coach Charlie Kautz will take an eight-man squad to Kalamazoo and, according to him, the thinclads possibly have a chance to score in the meet.

"I feel that we stand a chance in the discus, hurdles events, 100 and 220 yard dashes, and maybe the relay team will score," Coach Kautz said.

The team will consist of John Bentley, Jim Brown, Mike Hicks, Jack Mahone, Willie Tucker, Henry Parrish, Butch Clark, Bob Pruett, and possibly Bob Kunis, depending on whether his foot injury heals.

In the warm-up for the festival the Big Green edged by Fairmont State 67-60 Saturday.

Double winners for MU were Jim Brown in the hurdles and Bob Pruett in the 220 yard dash and broad jump.

Brown ran the 120 high hurdles in 16.3 seconds and finished the 220 low hurdles in 28.3 seconds. Pruett leaped 19 feet, seven inches in the broad jump and ran the 220 yard dash in 23.3 seconds.

John Bentley won the pole

vault event with a vault of 12 feet while using the new fiber glass pole that arrived last week.

Jack Mahone won the 100 yard dash with a time of 10.2 seconds and Mike Hicks tossed the discus for a distance of 131 feet, six inches for the other MU wins.

The mile relay decided the match as the score was 62-60 going into this event with MU leading. The mile relay team won with a time of 3:38.6 minutes.

Coach Bud Graham's golfers will be putting their conference championship on the line.

After losing only one match last season, the team dipped to a 9-6 overall record and a 6-4 conference mark this year. The sixth defeat came at the hands of the University of Kentucky Saturday at Lexington when the Big Green lost, 15-12.

MU's Harry Hoffer was medalist with a 35-37-72, but the Big Green lost in match play, 11-7, while winning the best ball match, 5-4.

Fresh from a 7-2 lacing of Morehead State College, the tennis team will take a 6-6 record to the festival.

The netters are 1-5 in the conference, having defeated Ohio University, 6-3, in their next to last conference engagement.

Top threat for Marshall is the No. 1 doubles combination of Bill Jefferson and Bill Carroll. The duo has been beaten only by Toledo in 12 outings.

The Big Green baseball team won one and lost one in a two-game road trip this past weekend.

Against Morris Harvey last Friday pitcher Larry Tincher limited the Golden Eagles to only two hits as the Big Green scored three runs and won a shutout.

Tincher allowed only six base runners, three on walks and another on an error. Tincher also struck out 13 batters in the best individual performance by an MU pitcher this season. Morris Harvey's two hits were singles.

In Saturday's action at West Virginia State the Big Green dropped an 8-4 decision as State avenged an earlier loss to the MU team.

Marshall had 10 hits but left 13 men stranded on base while the Yellow Jackets collected 11 hits.

The losing pitcher was Dale Lynd who now has a record of 3-3. Lynd was charged with all of State's runs and all but one of the hits.

Rusty Wamsley, Mid-American Conference batting leader, and Zeke Myers were the only two MU batters to get two hits for the day. Myers rapped out two singles and Wamsley went three for five on two doubles and a single.

Wamsley went four for nine over the weekend and upped his batting average to .465.

The MU record after the loss to State is 8-14 going into the Friday and Saturday games at Bowling Green. The weekend series closes MU's 1963 campaign.

HOW TO SEE EUROPE FOR ONLY $300 A DAY: NO. 3

When all of you go to Europe during your summer vacation, you will certainly want to visit Spain, where the tall corn grows,

The first thing you will notice upon entering Spain is the absence of sibilants. In Spain "s" is pronounced "th" and thereby hangs a tale. Until the reign of Philip IV—or Guy Fawkes, as he was sometimes called—Spaniards said "s" just like everybody else. Philip IV, however, lisped, and Spaniards, having an ingrained sense of propriety and not wishing to embarrass their monarch, decided that everybody should lisp. This did indeed put Philip IV very much at his ease, but in the end it turned out to be a very bad thing for Spain. It wrecked the sassafras industry—Spain's principal source of revenue—and reduced the nation to a second-class power.

As a result, Spaniards were all forced to turn to bull fighting in order to keep body and soul together. Today, wherever you go in Spain—in Madrid, in Barcelona, in Toledo, in Cleveland—you will see bulls being fought. For many years the bulls have sought to arbitrate this long-standing dispute, but the Spaniards, a proud people who use nothing but Castile soap, have rejected all overtures.

It is therefore necessary for me to explain bull fighting to anyone who is going to Spain. It is also necessary for me to say a few words about Marlboro Cigarettes because they pay me for writing this column, and they are inclined to pout if I ignore their product. In truth, it is no chore for me to sing the praises of Marlboro Cigarettes, for I am one who fairly swoons with delight when I come upon a cigarette which gives you the full, rich taste of good tobaccos plus the pure white Selectrate filter, and Marlboro is the only smoke I have found that fulfills both requirements. Oh, what a piece of work is Marlboro! The flavor reaches you without stint or diminution. You, even as I, will find these statements to be happily true when once you light a Marlboro. Marlboros come to you in soft pack or Flip-Top box, and are made only by the makers of Marlboro.

But I digress. Let us return to bull fighting. Bulls are by nature bellicose creatures who will keep fighting till the cows come home. Then they like to put on pipe and slippers and listen to the "Farm and Home Hour." However, the Spaniards will not allow the bulls any surcease. They keep attacking the bull and making veronicas—a corn meal pancake filled with ground meat. Bulls, being vegetarians, reject the veronicas and then, believe you me, the fur starts to fly!

To be perfectly honest, many Spaniards have grown weary of this incessant struggle and have left their homeland. Columbus, for example, took off in three little ships—the Patti, the Maxene, and the Laverne—and discovered Ohio. Magellan later discovered Columbus. Balboa also sailed to the New World, but he was silent on a peak in Darien, so it is difficult to know what he discovered.

Well sir, I guess that's all you need to know about Spain. So now, as the setting sun casts its rosy fingers over El Greco, let us take our reluctant leave of Spain—or Perfidious Albion, as it is jocularly called. Aloha, Spain or Perfidious Albion, aloha!

© 1963 Max Shulman

Let us not, however, take our leave of smoking pleasure. Let us keep enjoying those fine Marlboro Cigarettes—rich, golden tobacco—pure white Selectrate filter—soft pack or Flip-Top box—available in all fifty States of the Union.

Does a man really take unfair advantage of women when he uses Mennen Skin Bracer?

All depends on why he uses it.

Most men simply think Menthol-Iced Skin Bracer is the best after-shave lotion around. Because it cools rather than burns. Because it helps heal shaving nicks and scrapes. Because it helps prevent blemishes.

So who can blame them if Bracer's crisp, long-lasting aroma just happens to affect women so remarkably?

Of course, some men may use Mennen Skin Bracer because of this effect.

How intelligent!

New Specimens Are Added To MU's Geology Museum

By BOB ONEY
Staff Reporter

When was the last time you saw a meteorite? Have you bent a rock lately? These are just a few of the things you can see and do in the Geology Museum in Science Hall 306.

With more than 5,000 examples of minerals, rocks, and fossils, the Geology Museum affords an excellent opportunity to learn and understand the life of the earth and its inhabitants. It is the only geology museum in the state, according to Dr. Raymond E. Janssen, chairman of the Geology Department.

Several special displays in the museum are devoted to coal, petroleum and gemstones, and their by-products and uses. Some of the most interesting specimens include dinosaur tracks, tree fossils, meteorite fragments, arrowheads, ancient marine animals and many hundreds more.

A new addition to the museum is a Mastodon (a primitive elephant) tooth, which was collected by Richard Smith, Barbourville sophomore, in nearby Carter Caves, Ky. It is unique because it still contains the original enamel, which usually disappears in teeth fossils.

Also new is a display of primitive fish models which exhibit some of their peculiar characteristics, such as bony armor plates around their necks. These fish are remarkably similar in appearance to many of our present fish today.

Immediately outside the museum are display windows exhibiting fluorescent lights which glow under ultraviolet lights. Another window contains skull models showing comparative anatomy depicting evolutionary changes encountered by man.

The museum's success is mostly attributable to Dr. Janssen. He has written over 60 magazine articles, 300 encyclopedia articles, and 6 books pertaining to geology. His most recent article, about the geology of West Virginia, is the first chapter in the centennial book, West Virginia in Color. At present Dr. Janssen is working on an exhibit for the Centennial Train displaying structural and mineral properties of the state's rocks.

Seminar Class To Produce Five TV Plays

Five one-act plays will be presented by the Seminar in Speech 634, Radio and Television class, produced by Dr. Stephen D. Buell, associate professor of speech. The exact dates of the plays have not been announced, but they are scheduled for early summer.

The first play is Shakespeare's "Two Gentleman of Verona," which will be directed by Jim Martin of WSAZ-TV and Jerry Ashworth, Huntington graduate student. The cast includes Bill Suplee, Weirton sophomore; Stan Witofsky, Brooklyn, N. Y., sophomore; Kathy Haddad, Bonnie Jean Plybon, Huntington senior, and Jim Martin.

"This Way to Heaven", by Douglas Parkhurst is the next play on the series and will be directed by Mrs. Thelma Crook, principal of Pearidge Elementary.

The producer is Tom Cloer, assistant to Buildings and Grounds. The members of the cast are Nina Hatfield, Charleston junior; Jim Verdin, Weirton junior; Bobbi Rast, Dunbar junior, and Al Baker, Oak Hill senior.

The final three plays to be presented are "Goodbye To The Clown," "The Happy Journey," and "The Old Lady Shows Her Medals." The plays will also be presented at various schools and civic organizations in the area. The principle purpose of the productions is to adapt the theater to television. WSAZ-TV is assisting in the productions.

Job Recruiting Said Best Ever

The 1962-63 school year has been the most successful employment recruiting year in the history of the placement service, according to Robert Alexander, director of placement.

Monthly statistics have not been compiled since September when 148 part time and 27 full time vacancies were filled. Since then several hundred have been placed in jobs ranging from selling oil in Texas to welfare work in Kentucky and teaching in Colorado. Many of these vacancies were filled by January graduates.

Mr. Alexander added, however, that placement of part time employees, both on and off campus, has been slower than in previous years. He expressed the opinion that student assistants on campus were reluctant to give up their jobs because of the scarcity of jobs downtown.

A total of 1,099 part-time and 676 full time vacancies were filled last year and Mr. Alexander said that he expects this year's total to exceed that number by about 200.

He attributed the anticipated increase to two factors: first, almost as many alumni as graduating seniors are now taking advantage of the placement service and, second, employers who come to Marshall recruiting employees continue to come and tell others about the service. The placement office also sends brochures to industries and school districts across the nation,

QUESTION: Are you in favor of Daylight Saving Time?

Paxon Hayes, Huntington junior:

"Not yet. Basically I am because I know I can do more things in the daytime but I'm just not used to it yet. I always wake up an hour early."

Ruthie McDonald, Huntington junior:

"Yes, I'm in favor of it because my father told me it was a good idea."

Nancy Barbour, Huntington freshman:

"I'm not in favor of it because the evening hours go by so fast and you never accomplish anything."

Peggy Salyers, Ashland, Ky., junior:

"No. I live in Ashland, Ky., which is on standard time and I have to leave here an hour early going home and I lose an hour when I come back."
